

Jarnda Councillor-Barns

Jarnda Bina Councillor-Barns is a Karrajarri, Nuggaja, Noongar (Binjarup), Maori woman from Boorloo/ Perth, Western Australia. Her arts practice seeks to blur the boundaries between the digital and the tangible, exploring the intersections where technology and traditional art converge. Through a fusion of digital design and fine art techniques, I create immersive experiences that resonate with viewers on both aesthetic and emotional levels.

She grew up in Rubibi/ Broome and at 17 moved to Geraldton, her grandfather's Country. In Geraldton, Councillor-Barns started painting and has since applied her artistic skills through work for AUSTRADE, City of Perth, Super Rugby, Perth football league and others.

Currently residing in Boorloo, Councillor-Barns hopes to continue to share her connection to Noongar culture and country with her son, learning language and art from her Elders.
